Dear Friend,

As record numbers of students are enrolling at Austin Community College, they have a unique opportunity to participate in innovative programs designed to encourage their political and civic engagement and enrich their learning experience. Leading efforts for these programs is the Center for Public Policy & Political Studies, the first non-profit public policy center within a community college in this country.

The Center has built an impressive roster of award-winning programs, paid internships and educational conferences since its inception in 2007; and we are hard at work in gathering support for further innovation and growth in the coming years. That is why we are delighted to announce that the 2nd Annual Luncheon has been set for Friday, May 7, 2010, featuring special guest Richard Wolffe.

Many of you will recognize Richard from his coverage of the 2008 and 2004 presidential races, his work as a Newsweek political analyst and from his commentary on various cable news shows. His in-depth coverage of recent national campaigns gives him a true insider's perspective to share with luncheon attendees. We are fortunate to have him visit Austin and impart his views on the current state of politics and policy in America.

The spring luncheon offers a great opportunity for supporters of the Center to visit with the board and staff, along with many students who have benefited first-hand from Center programs. Your sponsorship of this event will go directly towards our programs and services to students. We hope that you will join us in supporting our students and the top quality programs that they deserve.

If you have any questions about the enclosed sponsor form or for more information about the luncheon, please contact Susan Shaw at (512) 394-7683 or susan@pendulumconsult.com. Thank you and we look forward to seeing you in May!

Sincerely,

Pam Willeford
2010 Luncheon Co-Chair
